FIGURE 4.12 A circular graphical representation of amino acid exchangeability according to Argyle's (1980) method. Numbers in parentheses denote number of codons in a family in cases where an amino acid is encoded by two codon families. About 60–90% of the observed amino acid replacements involve the nearest or second-nearest neighbors on the ring. Data from Pieber and Tohá (1983).